

Sam Jarman Bio

Sam is a senior fellow for the Center for the School of the Future at Utah State University. He is the executive director of the K-16 Alliance for the Utah Mountainland Region. Sam also supervises master's students for the School of Education at Utah Valley University.

Mr. Jarman served for six years as the superintendent of schools for Alpine School District. He was also the assistant superintendent and supervisor of high schools and special purpose schools in Alpine. Sam served as the principal at Provo High School and was recognized by the Utah Association of Secondary School Principals as State Principal of the Year in 2001.

He has served on the United Way of Utah County Board, Utah county Board of Health, Utah High School Activities Association Board of Trustees, and Brigham Young University Public School Partnership. Sam currently serves on the National Football Foundation (Utah Chapter) Board and Provo City My Home Town Initiative.